

Sensible heat flux is proportional to the temperature. Latent heat flux is proportional to vapor pressure difference between leaf and air; more heat is lost as deficit from air to leaf and the leaf conductance to leaf temperature increases about air temperature. water vapor.